Scar. Radio Station Robbed

Station Improves Security Measures To Stop Crime

By Hanif Sarangi

The Christmas season, a time for good cheer, merriment and burglaries. Last month the Scarborough campus radio station (CSCR) was broken into and robbed.

Although no signs of forced entry was evident on the front door of the station or the door to the record library, it was plainly visible that an attempt had been made to open the door of the station's recording studio with a screwdriver.

Having failed in this attempt, the thief broke into the technical cabinet to obtain the key to open the recording studio.

Once entry to the recording studio had been gained, the trespasser hooked up the equipment in the production studio and used the station's tapes to tape music. None of the equipment, estimated to have a value of $7,000-$10,000, was reported missing.

A box of chrome tapes, however, was stolen from the filing cabinet. It is not known whether any of the station's records have been stolen but a record inventory is currently in progress.

No suspects have been identified in the break-in. One Campus Policeman remarked that "in these cases, you have to catch them actually in the act to prove anything."

Station Manager Steve Armes stated that the incident will result in "increased internal and external security." A lock has been placed on the transmitter and free access to the station has been restricted to all but the Station Manager and the Program Director. Armes added that "we've taken other measures as well which we won't disclose."

Programming Director Dave Mackenzie is disappointed with the repercussions that will result from this incident. "This really puts a damper on the freedom of using facilities," said Mackenzie.

Other criminal acts on Scarborough campus in December include the theft of photograpic equipment from The Underground office.

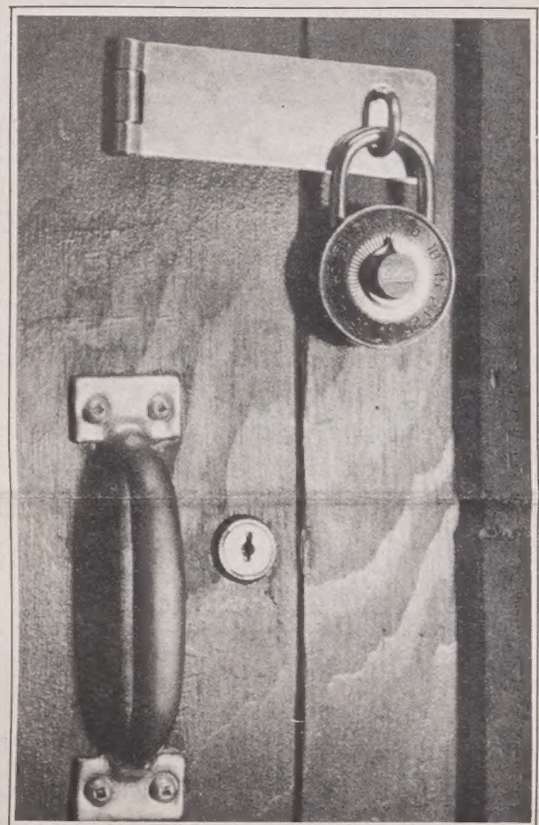
A camera and flash owned by the editor of paper is reported missing from The Underground office during mid-December.

A suspect was also apprehended for trying to force open a door in the third floor of the R-Wing.

Scarborough student Paul Smith spotted a man trying to forcibly enter The Underground's third floor production office. The man ran when questioned.

The suspect was later apprehended when he passed by the Security Desk while Smith was giving the man's description.

Said Smith "I was just giving them his description when he walked by. I yelled and they (Campus Police) grabbed him."



New locks were recently installed in the radio station. A sign of the times?

Gandhi A Success

By Pamela Kolahal

Eighteen year old Monika Gandhi, a second year student at Scarborough Campus, was the guest of honour at a gala reception held at the Ontario Science Centre on Dec. 8.

The reception inaugurated the debut of her first album, Betaab-e-Dil, or Lonely hearts.

According to Monika, "the album incorporates a mixture of Western and Indian music so all can enjoy the variety."

Presently plans are underway to dub some of the more popular songs on the album into English so that they can be released to local stations.

The album has been endorsed by the Honourable David Peterson and the Indian Consul-general S.L.Malik. It has also been extremely well received by the East Indian community.

Production of Lonelyheart started in June of 1985. The album was a family effort: Monika's dad, Subhash Gandhi acted as both lyricist and producer.

All of the costuming and make-up was the effort of her mom, Pavan.

The album could not have been created without hours of daily rehearsals and the help of Monika's brother, Vikram.

Betaab-e-Dil chronicles the cycle of life. Each song relates to a stage in that cycle. Starting

Scarborough Students Want a Student Centre

By Hanif Sarangi

Eighty-six per cent of Scarborough students want a new student centre on this campus.

That was the result of a plebiscite conducted in November of last year. Of those surveyed, 683 (86%) were in favour of building a student centre while 114 (14%) were opposed.

During the week in which the survey was held, representatives from Students' Council went to different classes to inform and encourage students to fill out a survey.

Surprisingly, the most popular item among students was the creation of a new student lounge (84% in favour). The building of a new pub, the original reason for the creation of a new student centre, was favoured by 74% of the students.

Another popular feature among students was the installation of a food service in the proposed centre. Over 70% of students asked for this service.

The results of the survey were consistent throughout the different student years. The top nine services desired by students in the proposed centre were almost identical in order of preference between the different years.

Scarborough Campus Students' Council (SCSC) President Young Kim was pleased with the results of the survey saying that "this shows that students are aware of a lack

FOR YOUR INFO

PART—TIME JOB OPPORTUNITIES ON-CAMPUS

If you are a student in financial need and your OSAP allocation is insufficient, you may be eligible to apply for one of the part-time, career oriented positions on the Scarborough Campus.

These positions are available through the Ontario Work Study program. The jobs entail up to 15 hours of work per week, pay $6.00/hour, and you are generally allowed to make up to $1,000.00 in the program. There are positions availiable in many of the academic and administrative departments on-campus, and they can provide you with valuable course and career oriented work experience.

To qualify for participation in the Ontario Work Study program, you must be a Canadian citizen or permanent resident and a resident of Ontario. You must demonstrate financial need (you must have either applied for OSAP and found that their assessment does not cover your expenses, or you must be able to provide legitimate reasons for being unwilling to take on a loan or debt load). In addition to these criterion, you must be carrying at least a 60 percent course load and be making satisfactory academic progress.

For further information on the Ontario Work Study program, contact the Career Center, room S-302F.

EDITORIAL

Help! I Need Somebody

To write or not to write....that is the question. Whether it is better in the long run to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous deadlines, knowing no one is going to read the damn thing anyway, or to take up typewriters against a sea of apathy, and by opposing, end it. Indeed.

I've spent three years working for The Underground; meaning I've put in a lot of long days, longer nights and seemingly endless weekends for the paper. That's okay...I calculate I get paid over 43 cents an hour for my trouble; and, anyway, I knew what I was getting into when I took the job. What is disheartening, however, is the staggering disinterest and apathy displayed in this campus.

A good newspaper cannot exist in a vacuum. For a paper to reflect the ideas and impressions of its audience, it must first discover what they are. There must be input from the audience, itself. From YOU. We need your help if this paper is to have the impact it deserves.

Drop by our office for a chat and give us your opinion on the latest paper. Write a story for The Underground, be it sports, a news story, an opinion, a movie, book, or album review or just mindless verbal diarrhea. Chances are that you'll see your name in print.

If writing doesn't interest you, we always need help in layout, production, copyediting, proofreading, typesetting and photography. We could also use an accountant and a secretary. Groupies would be nice. If you have an opinion, a complaint or a compliment, write a letter to the editor.

Get involved. There must be something on campus that excites you. Depresses you? Pisses you off? Are you looking for some sort of creative outlet which will finally allow your former friends and future enemies to realize just how brilliant you really are? Be warned, there are only thirteen more issues left. Write for The Underground before The Underground writes about you!!

ONE OF THE MOST EFFECTIVE WAYS OF PUTTING PRESSURE ON THE South African Apartheid government is through economic boycotts of companies that invest in S.A. The Underground urges you to boycott the following companies and products.

Budget Guide For Beaver Salad ...

By Glen Newbury

How does a person feed themself when his/her salad is being weighed by Beaver Foods?

Assuming that you want to go for pure bulk and not nutrition you should look for the largest volume/mass ratio in the vegetable chosen.

To achieve this, lettuce or tomatoes should be placed in the microwave for two to four minutes for dehydration before being taken to the cashier. Since lettuce is 96% water and tomatoes are 76% water this will ensure that they retain their volume while decreasing in mass.

You can rehydrate the vegetable after weighing them by placing them in the water fountain for ten minutes.

Assuming that you also plan to nourish yourself while eating, the process is a little more complicated (minimum MATA26Y and BIOB17Y recommended). For a proper diet you require protein, certain fatty acids, carbohydrates, and vitamins.

Beaver Foods carries chick peas and green beans for protein. Stick to the green beans (much lighter). Vitamin C can be found in tomatoes; vitamin A in carrots. The carbohydrates and fatty acids are in the salad dressing.

So now that we have the ingredients, what do we use to achieve the largest calorie/mass ratio, thus keeping food energy value high and price low?

1 Carrot - 30 Calories - 80 Mass (grams) - .38 cal/mass
1 Tomato - 20 - 80 - .25
1 spoon dressing - 40 - 5 - 8
10 green beans - 15 - 20 - .75

Obviously, from the chart above, once you get your token carrot bit, tomato slice and green beans, the rest of your bowl should be filled with salad dressing.

Although this may seem rather bland at first, a student on a budget with an imagination will quickly learn how to mix salad dressing to create an appetizing lunch.

The Underground once again proves you can have a nourishing and economical lunch on Scarborough campus.

Sexual Harrassment

EDMONTON (CUP) - A University of Alberta professor has been fined $2,000.00 and suspended for six months without pay by the university for sexually harrassing six of his students.

"The staff member's actions constituted unwanted and unwarranted sexual advances toward female students," said Peter Meekison, who began investigating in June after six women graduate students in educational psychology filed complaints against eight of their professors.

Meekison dismissed seven of the complaints for lack of evidence and, in one case, conflicting testimony.

Meekison said the professor's offences were not serious enough to warrant dismissal and the penalty imposed was severe enough. An associate professor at the U of A suspended for six months would lose at least $19,000.00, he said.

But some students don't think the punishment was severe enough.

"If the accused has been found guilty he should be dismissed," said Mike Nickel U of A Students' Union president. "I would wager money he would do it again."

Meekison refused to reveal the name of the professor or the details of his investigation because the professor can still appeal the decision.

Caroline Nevins, student council vice president said the results of sexual harrassment investigations at the university are kept secret whether an appeal is won or not. She said the student council is lobbying the U of A Board of Governors

A member of the U of A women's centre said representatives from the centre will be meeting with Nickel and university president Meyer Horowitz, but that no further action has been considered yet. and General Faculties Council to make this information public.

Consort performs Free at Scarborough

By Linda Cahill

The internationally-acclaimed Toronto Consort will perform a free public concert in the Scarborough campus Meeting Place next Sunday at 3 p.m. The program will feature English renaissance music.

Canada's foremost early music ensemble, the group brings alive for modern audiences the music of the medieval and renaissance periods. For some thirteen years, the Consort has captivated audiences in North America, Great Britain and Europe with its ability to perform early music "in an artful, competent and enticing way" (Oberbayerisches Volksblatt, Germany).

Renowned for their versatility and their "sense of style and fun," the group's members all sing and play at least one, if not several different medieval and renaissance instruments, including flute, harp, recorder, krummhorn, viola da gamba and others. Their repertoire spans five centuries and a wide variety of musical styles.

In addition to performing, the group is known for the excellent workshops and seminars it conducts internationally.

This event is part of a series of Sunday afternoon concerts co-sponsored by the Scarborough College Cultural Affairs Committee and the Musician's Trust Fund.

Lasers - The Ultimate Weapon

By Arnold Legzdins

It's December 28th, 1985. An idea that has been six years in the making is about to become reality.

A female voice coos, "3...2...1..."; a buzzer sounds. A faint ripple passes quickly through the circle of sand in the Nevada desert and disappears.

It was small, as underground nuclear tests of hydrogen bombs go; only 150 kilotons. But it was significant because it was the American response to a proposed Soviet moratorium on nuclear weapons testing and it coincidentally heralded the sixth anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Most important of all, the explosion was the first full-scale test of the soon-to-be operational x-ray laser.

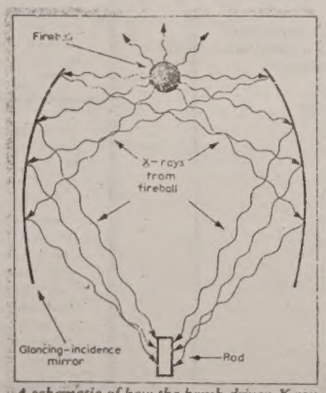
The project started back in 1980 when physicists in Nevada were trying to see what they could do with the intense energy nuclear explosion.

They found that it was theoretically feasible to collect the x-rays from a nuclear blast into a single beam with trillions of watts of power that could vaporize anything in its path; by comparison, the lasers in use here at Scarborough yield only a few milliwatts. But because they had found nothing that could stand in the laser's way in 1980, they had no way of focusing their deadly rays.

Five years later, in May of 1985, it was rumoured that the problems was solved by using the same technology that makes x-rays telescopes possible

By aiming x-rays at huge metal plates at angles approaching zero, the plates could act as mirrors to concentrate the terrific energy of the laser light.

In the words of Professor Fraser Code of the downtown campus, "no one in Canada knows how it (The x-ray laser), works." Nonetheless, speculation runs rampant.



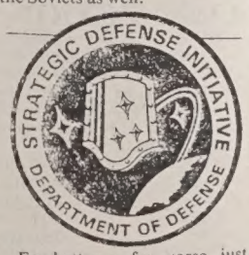
A schematic of how the bomb-driven X-ray laser might work

In June of 1985, the British magazine New Scientist speculated that the x-rays released from a small nuclear bomb could be guided down a tunnel of reflecting metal plates to converge on a long, thin graphite (carbon) rod.

The intense energy of the laser knocks all the electrons off the carbon nucleus. Nearby electrons then drop into the empty energy levels left behind by the missing electrons and in the process release "x-ray photons", or little packets of energy.

These photons cause a chain reaction in the neighbouring atoms and the result is a very intense x-ray laser pulse that destroys anything and everything that has the misfortune of being in its path.

The secrecy of the project approaches that seen in the Manhattan Project, when America was building the first atomic bomb. No physicists appear in any journals explaining how their invention works, despite President Reagan's claim that he would share the technology of the strategic defence initiative with the Soviets as well.



For better or for worse, just as with the first atomic bomb, the technology of the x-ray laser is here to stay and cannot be undone.

Princeton University is already working on peaceful applications of this newest 'ultimate weapon'; perhaps one day this laser too will become obsolete and take its place besides the muskets and flintlocks at the local historical museum.

Drinkers Guide To Scarborough Parties:

Ah Christmas! Tis the season to have parties and many of our clubs here at Scarborough Campus did just that last month.

We at The Underground feel it is our duty to attend these parties if only to enlighten those who were unfortunate enough to miss them. Yes, it's a dirty job, but someone's got to do it!

That's why we've developed a rating system for each of the recent club Christmas parties that we attended The number of stars will tell you what (if anything) you missed.

Afro Asian and Caribbean Students' Association (AACSA) -  This year's AACSA Christmas party was a semi formal dinner dance which was held in the main cafeteria.

Unfortunately attendance was lower than usual because of the fact that it took place on the same night as the highly successful Regatta/FM concert.

CSCR — ½ Attendance was good and the music was innovative, as would be expected at a radio station party.

This year's CSCR party was held in the faculty lounge and was fairly successful despite the fact that SCSC's Beach Bash Super Pub, History party and French Club party were on the same night.

French Club — *½ C'est dommage. This year's French Club Christmas party was yet another victim of bad timing. Flanked by SCSC's Beach Bash and CSCR'S Christmas party, the French Club party ended before most got started.

Obviously Santa and champagne weren't enough to hold people's interest. Hopefully their next get-together will be more like their successful Halloween party.

History Club — * What do you get when you mix plenty of food and booze with a handful of guys and girls, one guitar and lots of dirty jokes?

Answer: The History Club Christmas party, not the social event of the season.

Drastic Plastic's Top 10 Albums

By Tom Mohr

Tears For Fears - Songs From the Big Chair - Polygram
Big songs, big sound, hands-down winner.

Propaganda - A Secret Wish - Island
Darkly humorous, exquisite production

Kate Bush - Hounds of Love - Capital
Weird yet wonderful and continues to delight

Peter Townsend - White City - WEA
Rock's past, present and future all wrapped up in one tidy package.

Dire Straits - Brothers in Arms - Polygram
Stylish guitar-oriented rock

Bruce Springsteen - Born in the U.S.A. - CBS
American rock music at it's best

Sting - The Dream of The Blue Turtles - A&M
Jazzy, witty, and very competent

Bryan Ferry - Boys and Girls - WEA
Reinforcing his role as the last lonely romantic in the world

Prefab Sprout - Two Wheels Good - WEA
Clever song writing but a tad pretentious.

The Style Council - Internationalists - Polygram
New "old club" sound with social awareness.

HONORABLE MENTIONS TO:

Mike Oldfield - The complete Mike Oldfield - Virgin
Four entirely different sides which collectively extend the limits of rock.

Nick Mason and Rick Fenn - Profiles - CBS
Reminding us how good Pink Floyd is and how much we wish they would come out of dormancy.

WORST RELEASES OF 1985:

Cory Hart - Rudolph the Red-nosed Reindeer - Capitol

Falco - Rock Me Amadaeus - A&M
A close tie, the latter defining "wretched excess", the former merely seasonal dreck.

SCAA Superstars

On December 6, the Scarborough Campus Athletic Association (SCAA) staged its second annual superstars tournament.

Seven teams entered the tournament and participated in events such as the obstacle course, frisbee golf, egg toss, blind volleyball and silly relays.

The tournament was won by the team called Bub's Brigade but a good time was had by all.

After the tournament the SCAA held its annual Christmas party which featured a DJ and free alcohol.

The purpose of the tournament and the party was to raise money for the CHUM-CITY Christmas Wish for underprivileged children.

The SCAA was able to raise $800 from the tournament and from donations.

The SCAA would like to thank all those who participated as well as those who helped out to make the day a big success. Let's hope next year will be as successful as this years.

with infatuation, the album progresses through love, misunderstanding, testing, heartbreak and parting.

Monika explains the title of the album in the following manner: "At the beginning of a relationship you are lonely. Once the cycle of love has begun you are put through the six phases. Then the parting occurs, and loneliness once again becomes your companion."

Monika was born in Cambridge, England. She began her professional singing career at the age of 11 at a multicultural festival.

She is now majoring in Biochemistry. She is a highly visible member of the Campus, and an active participant in the Indian Students' Association.

International Chinese Students' Association (ICSA) — * This year's ICSA Christmas dance was probably the best club party so far this year. The Spectrum was the scene for this spectacular event.

Organizer Keith Chen did an excellent job making sure the time, place and mood was right for a fantastic night of celebrating. Attendance was outstanding and everyone had a good time.

Philosophy Club — ½ As usual the Philosophy Club Christmas party was a successful event. Held in the Principal's residence, there was lots of great food, stimulating conversation and a roaring fire that would make anyone feel Christmassy.

Political Science — * If, over the Christmas season, you were looking for fun, laughter and good times, this was not the party to go to.

This wasn't a party; it was a tutorial with hor d'oeuvres. How the mighty have fallen.

SCSC — * Yes folks, apathy reigns even amongst the leader of our Campus. Obviously Council found out that three people are not enough to make a party successful but they are getting one star for organizing the smash bash Beach Pub.

The Underground — ½ The second best party of the season after the ICSA party. Dancing, cake and crisco, what more could one ask for. (Editor's note: This is a totally unbiased review from an entertainment editor who was just recently elected into her position...thanks guys!!)

The Underside

In this special issue of The Underside, Winston will answer a few of the hundreds of letters he has received so far this year.

Dear Winston:

Please help me. I am getting married next month and I may have a problem. My boyfriend suffers from premature ejaculation. Do you know if this means I will have premature babies?

Blushing

Dear Blushing:

My experts tell me that men who suffer from premature ejaculation do so because they have impatient sperm. Impatient sperm lead to impatient babies which leads to frustrated mothers in more ways than one.

This condition is inherited and psychological studies show that men who run red lights, wake up before 7 a.m., run a lot and sail in April, also suffer from premature ejaculation.

Dear Winston:

Please give me your opinion on a guy who takes a girl to McDonalds every Friday and then sleeps over in her apartment for the weekend. This has been going on for three semesters.

Wits end

Dear Wits:

I believe the only kind of buns you should give him are the ones with sesame seeds on them.

Dear Winston:

I've changed to Septol toothpaste and still don't get the women. What am I to do now?

Desperate

Dear Desperate:

Brushing your teeth with any kind of toothpaste is the worst thing to do if you want to get women. Having white teeth will only give you the self confidence to keep your mouth open a lot, and that is your problem.

When around women, keep your mouth shut and let them do all the talking and they will love you.

P.S. Also remember that if you are dating a woman on a Saturday night, never order onions on your submarine.

Dear Winston:

Please give me your sound advice. It is okay to go to bed with a guy on the first date or should I get to know him first?

Hot to Trot

Dear Hot:

It's okay with me if it's okay with you. I would suggest, however, that you check out the guy's feelings on the matter. Some men don't like going to bed with strange women. As a rule of thumb, I would say the right time to think of bed is only after he knows your first and last name and remembers what you're majoring in.

Dear Winston:

What do you do when your girlfriend tells you that she doesn't want to see you anymore? That is, besides getting drunk?

A potential AA member

Dear Potential:

Oh my god. This is a terrible problem. I can understand how you feel.

Please pick any or all of the following possibilities.

a) Go to her on bended knees, ask for forgiveness and throw yourself at her mercy. There is a problem, however. She will then have you by the balls and your life won't be worth living.

b) Renounce all women completely as being man's major source of pain on this planet and travel to Tibet in order to spend the rest of your life sitting on top of a mountain.

Dear Winston:

Under your advice I have been practicing birth control by douching with Coke but I became pregnant after Coke changed its formula. Do you think I should have used Pepsi?

Sorry and Pregnant

Dear Sorry:

It would appear that when it comes to birth control, Coke isn't it. Some students have advised me , though, that they have had considerable success with an aspirin tablet. Before going to bed, put the tablet between your knees, and keep it there.

"Jewel" is a Gem

By Barbara Lim

The much anticipated sequel to "Romancing the Stone" has finally arrived. Sequels have the unfortunate luck of being a let down after having such great reviews with the original.

"The Jewel of the Nile" managed to retain the same feeling of fun and excitement experienced by the original. We pick up the famous screen couple, romantic novelist Joan Wilder (Kathleen Turner) and adventurer Jack Colton (Michael Douglas) six months later.

They are about to fall into an adventure in the deserts when the ever present pin in their bubble arrives, Ralph (Danny DeVito), fueled with a greater desire for revenge since we last saw him.

The chemistry between these three actors once again emerges in this fast paced action pack adventure and romance.

Unfortunately, the flaw in this film is the so-called villain, Omar (Spiros Focas). He fails to project the desired image of the classic bad guy because he does not appear often enough. When he does show it is more of a nuisance than fear that is felt by his "menancing" appearance.

The whole film concentrated too much on the developing romance between Joan and Jack. This may have been done to resolve any possibility of yet another sequel. (Like those numerous "Rocky" movies)

However, the film is worth watching, I do not regret seeing it. There was a lot of action (Turner dangles from the side of a speeding train) and humour (Men of the desert have ghetto blasters strapped to the side of their camels as they attack Omar's camp).

All in all the movie was not terrible. My friends have different ideas but I'm the one who gets to review it. On a scale of one to ten, "The Jewel of the nile" deserves a seven.

Student Centre

of services on Scarborough campus."

The results of the plebiscite have no real effect on the decision to build a student centre. It is, however, hoped that the survey will influence the administration's decision to build the centre.

Letters To The Editor

Thanks

To The Editor:

Despite the many problems the student politicians of this college seemed to have encountered this year, I am extremely proud of the co-operation extended to the SAC Scarborough Committee during its recent concert.

I would personally like to thank Miss Ira Baptiste, Mr. Philip Shaw, and the rest of SCSC for their help in making the FM/Nash the Slash concert a success.

Although the concert did not sell out, all those in attendance were treated to a great evening of entertainment. We look forward to providing even better services for the students of Scarborough in 1986.

Sincerely yours,
Philip Boland,
V.P. Corporations.

Kung Fan

To The Editor:

The very scholarly eminent Catholic Theologian Hans Kung spoke in the Meeting Place at Scarborough College Nov. 20, 1985. His lecture was brilliant, very timely and revolutionary with historic content.

I believe that The Underground can be taken to task and seriously so because as a lead news article it was lacking in understanding of what was being said and consequently couldn't report the news. Then as though this wasn't fatuous (we don't know what this means either), enough...in the fourth paragraph, the news item suddenly turned into an editorial!!! (The first hour of the first journalism class teaches the difference between news and editorial items.)

I curdle with embarrassment for your silly paper when you blunder into juvenile (sic) criticism with such conviction especially when you apparently didn't understand a word that a world class scholar presented.

Here's a brick bar for the writer and two for the editor.

To Laura Wolford,

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year and here's a little something for you;

"The sword swung on the heath, The sickle in the fruitful field, The sword he sung a song of death, But could not make the sickle yield"
W. Blake

From your friend in the Swamp,
I love you.

To:Donna L. & Ron W.

You have been my closest pals ever since we got stuck in this joint. I just want to let you know that you guys are terrific!!
Have a Merry Christmas!!
Michael Francis T.

Edna,

I just wish that at times you'd realize how much you mean to me. We've been through a lot as of this point that it would be such a disappointment if we pack up and go our own separate ways. Remember, it takes T—W—O to make this work out. Also remember the promises. I'll be counting on it!!
Michael

Michael,

You mean so much to me and it would be stupid of me to lose you. No one has ever cared for me as much as you have, and for all these, Rolevblf!! I hope things would get better between us, just try and I promise that matters between us will get better. I'll try my damn best this time, cause I don't want to lose you!
Love,
Edna

To the losers on the Couch who Criticized the Loser who Criticized you in the first place:

You call him/her ignorant, say he/she is socially rejected and accuse him/her of not identifying him/her self. Well I for one agree with him/her and whole heartedly say to you:"$!&?-¢$?!!

For Rent;
Two family dwelling ideal for close-knit families. Lights, heat, hot-water available for extra rate if desired. Apply to basement of B-5. Sorry, no boat parking available. However TTC service right to the harbour.

Wanted - Small furry animal with no legs to keep me warm at night.
Deprived in B-5

To the Residence resident who remembers Halloween:

It maybe a pleasure to look at
But it's more fun to hold.
So play my game, reply with clues,
Hopefully someday I'll decipher the clue,
And hopefully you're female, and single too!!

Since The Underground failed to give the year representatives the recognition they deserve in the The Underground's Christmas report card, I Arturio Trotman, have come to the rescue.

Lori Atkinson: Nick named "Care Bear" Favourite saying: "Oh? Was there a council meeting?"
Constantly plagued by recurring fantasies, Lori will probably be an author of romantic novels when she graduates. Lori can be readily identified in the halls by the noticeable abundance of cookie crumbs in her clothing.

Danny Trombley: Nicknamed "Mad Max". Favourite saying:"No, I won't do it!!".
Danny's ambition: To become a well known U of T sports jock. However, having mastered the art of saying a lot about nothing, I predict that Danny will be a politician.

Art Trotman : Chairman of 2nd year Reps. of course Nick named : "Brainstorm"
I have made it my life ambition to make the editor of The Underground pay for the "Trotboy" article of the October 29th issue. Until then, I will be content having my life savings transferred to pennies in order to achieve my other life long ambition of spending all my time just counting my wealth."
